

Heather Hall is an instructor in the Legal Analysis and Communication Department at Mississippi College School of Law. She teaches 1L students the fundamentals of legal writing, legal analysis, and basic oral advocacy skills. She is also an adjunct professor for the undergraduate paralegal program at Mississippi College. Heather was a paralegal for nearly fifteen years before starting law school as a non-traditional student. She graduated magna cum laude in 2019 from Mississippi College School of Law's accelerated two-year J.D. program. While in law school she was a member of the Law Review and completed an externship with Mississippi Supreme Court Justice David M. Ishee. Immediately following graduation, she joined a small practice in Hazlehurst, Mississippi, where she was given the opportunity to gain a wealth of experience drafting complex legal documents and arguing various matters in state court and federal court before coming back to MC Law to join the faculty.

Heather enjoys keeping up her skills and giving back by volunteering with the Mississippi Volunteer Lawyers Project and the legal aid clinic at Mission First, a local nonprofit ministry in Jackson, Mississippi.
